The school theater and its role in dealing with the phenomenon of drug abuse and addiction students in the industrial technical secondary stage A play demon named addiction" model analytical study

Researcher

wageh Gerges Francis

abstracts

The study examined the role of the school theater in raising awareness about the dangers of drug abuse, addiction, causes, effects, and methods of prevention through theatrical artistic installation of the play "Demon called Addiction" in an attempt to introduce the adolescent in the industrial technical secondary stage to the serious damage and the many negative effects of drugs of any kind and how to use them with an intellectual vision And technical treatment critical of the negative practices of this phenomenon in our Egyptian society

:Study questions

What is the drama that showed the character of drug users in the play  ?What causes some students to take drugs while others refrain

What is the importance of cooperation and benefit between the school theater and community institutions in combating this phenomenon

Objectives of the study
-identify the causes and factors affecting some students to drug abuse and its impact on society and methods of prevention in the framework of awareness of technical secondary students of the age of 16-18 years of the seriousness of drug use intellectual vision and technical treatment of those negative practices wrong.

- the definition of adolescents in particular and society in general to the many damage and negative effects on the individual addicted to all levels of health, psychological, social and behavioral basis of the principle of prevention is better than treatment..

-The importance of the age stage addressed to the stage text is middle adolescence age (16-18 years), because the student at this stage also confirms the psychology of growth are willing to learn values and standards as well as can take responsibility and control emotions and understand the negative effects of drug abuse in all its forms And their types.

The study results

-The study stressed the importance of conscious technical recruitment of one of the psychological treatment methods of addiction, collective psychotherapy. The study also analyzed the psychological and mental effects and disorders of the drug users.

-he study revealed the importance of religious awareness and the correct and moderate religious formation of children in the awareness and prohibition of these pests and toxins.

-he study also pointed out the importance of the method of educational balance in dealing with children by parents, so do not judge them and do not provide them with excessive pampering spoiler, but firmness and seriousness and follow-up vigilance of their behavior