VI. LITERATURE CITED

Abou-Aziz-A.B.; FK. Abdel-Wahab--; MA. EL- Gliand our; and A . Abou-Aziz,(1976 a) Effect of different storage temperatures on phenolic compounds in banana and mango fruits. Scientia-Horticulture. 1976, 4:4,309 - 3 1 5 ; 14 ref

EL-Mahdy, M.A.M.(1960): physiological studies on maturity and storage of Thompson seedless (banaty) and Garibi grapes. PH.D Thesis.fac. of Agric. Cairo. univ. UAR.

morphological features of fruit vs maturity. Indian J. Hort. (1970) 27(3/4): 117-and harvesting time of mangoes var. Baneshan. Part 11. Physico-chemical Abst. 45 (6): 4531).

*Roberto, L; Vazquez-Ochoa and Maria, T. Colinas-Leon, (1990): Changes in guavas of three maturity stages in response to temperature and relative humidity.
Departamento de Fitotecnia, Llyniversidad Autonoma Chapingo, Hort. Science, Vol. 25(1).

*Ryall, A.L. and V. F. Pentzer (1974): Handling, Transportation and storage of fruits and 28:247-57.

Salama, S.B. (1959): “Physiological studies on the changes of "Hindi" and "Pain" mango fruits during growth, Storage and ripening”. Ph.D., Thesis, Cairo Univ., U.A.R.

Salama, S.B. and M.M El-Azzoni (1954): "Studies on the Determination of Maturity and picking index of the fruits of some varieties of mango". Fac. of Agr. Bull. 84, June, 1956.

quality of julie mangoes stored at low temperatures. Acta Horticulturae. 1994, No.368.712-722.

refrigerated temperatures on the incidence of chilling injury and ripening quality

Srivastava-VP (1982): Efficacy of some fungicides and hot water treatments in Control of post harvest decay of mango fruits. Pesticides. 984, 18: 1, 63-64; Ital.; 4 ref.

Wettestini (1957): Chlorophyll, letal and der submikro sropische frommech sell der plastiden exptl, cell, Res. 2-427433.

